CAMBRIDGE HIGH AND LATIN SCHOOL

LESLIE L. CLEVELAND
Headmaster

MR. LESLIE L. CLEVELAND

As we end our happy and eventful sojourn in our beloved C. H. L. S., our hearts are somewhat saddened at the thought of leaving behind us a friend who for four years has devoted his untiring efforts toward making our work here both profitable and pleasant.

We take this opportunity to thank him for his unselfish service, and to express our appreciation of his ability to meet the multitude of problems with an understanding, sympathizing heart. We shall carry with us a loving remembrance of the happy days we spent under his guidance, and may our future conduct reflect credit on our school and on our headmaster.

Dedication

We, the Senior Class of 1933, do dedicate this Year Book with sincere gratitute to our adviser and friend whose kindness and co-operation have won for him the respect and admiration of the entire graduating class.

Mr. Thomas Long Bramhall

THOMAS LONG BRAMHALL
Assistant Headmaster

Prologue

As we approach the end of our long journey, we begin to realize how closely we are linked to the school days that we are so soon to leave behind us. Companionships, associations, activities, all seem to become more dear to us as we realize that we are on the brink of the unknown. This goal that we have striven for and looked forward to so long is now reached, and we suddenly discover that this time of progress and endeavor is very dear to us.

We cannot hope to include or even to suggest in these pages all the happy memories which we shall keep of our days in high school. By recording the names of our classmates, and the outstanding events of our career as a class, we hope to provide a background upon which we may retain our memories of high school. Wherever we may steer our flights in life, and whatever may be the difficulties which we encounter, we shall be more and more grateful for the experience and guidance given us by the faculty of this school, who have piloted us this distance on our journey and who have helped us to lay a true course for the future.

Class Song

Before us lies the vista of our fate
The future, dim and hazy to our sight,
We backward gaze awhile and hesitate,
E'er we begin our longer, harder flight.

Despite the pangs of failure and remorse,
We'll keep the visions of the dreams we've known,
Swift as an arrow on its true-laid course
We'll battle onward where our dreams have flown.

Triumphant now, we struggle to fulfill
The hopes of those who thus have helped us rise
To test our powers and to try our skill
In voyage through the undiscovered skies.

Our many ways may cross or they may part,
We cannot fathom what our lives may hold,
But happy memories rest within each heart.
Courage and truth shall bring us joys untold.

POLLY POMEROY.

In Memoriam

MR. DONOVAN

Mr. Joseph Donovan was a gentle soul, a beloved co-worker, a popular teacher, a successful executive, a devoted husband and father, an every day saint. His passing so soon after the close of the school year is sad testimony of his tragic battle to carry on. As an example of resignation, cheerful fortitude, and true sportsmanship in the game of life, Joseph Donovan will continue to carry on among the pupils and teachers of this school. We should be better for having known him.

MISS ELIZABETH CONLIN

When death claims a woman like Miss Elizabeth Conlin, the world has lost a noble soldier, her family, a beloved daughter and sister, the school in which she worked so faithfully has suffered the loss of a teacher of rare qualities whose memory will always be an inspiration of heroic courage to us. For more than a year she moved among us day after day, conscientious, active, and smiling, always realizing that her return to health was impossible, yet struggling to win. She did win in the hardest battle that is fought. The members of our class who knew her loved her, and will keep her memory dear.

DELIA M. STICKNEY

All friends of C. H. L. S. were sorry to hear of the death of Miss Delia M. Stickney, in Los Angeles, January first, for forty-one years a teacher in this school.

Soon after graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology she came here to teach chemistry.

On her retirement in 1930, the school lost a faithful teacher, a broad-minded, scholarly woman, whose high standard of truth, honesty, and loyalty had a great influence upon her pupils.

The class of 1933 will cherish the ideals which Miss Stickney held ever before us.

FELIX ZIENKO

Felix Zienko, a member of our class, died at his home, very suddenly, on January second. No mere words can serve to comfort his stricken parents, and his many friends.

He was a splendid type of young man, whom we can ill afford to lose. We, his classmates, appreciate his true worth, and we lament his passing from our ranks.

NORMAN ADELSON

It is one sad duty to record that our classmate Norman Adelson has gone. He was a boy who devoted himself unselfishly to others. He was a splendid student — much beloved by both his teachers and classmates. We shall miss him, and it is difficult for us to express our great loss. We can only say with the majestic solemnity that was Shelley's:

"Grief too sad for song,
Wail for the world's wrong!"

THE REVIEW

The Review, with Miss Bligh as faculty adviser, has had a very successful year, completely paying its expenses and making some profit in addition. In spite of adverse conditions, eager volunteers garnered enough subscriptions to go ahead. The hard-working advertising staff have been tireless, for theirs has been a difficult task this year, and they have done remarkably well. We appreciate the patronage of our advertisers, who have helped the Review so much to another successful year.

Five numbers were issued, containing an unusually good collection of articles, freely sent in by the pupils, or obtained through the kind cooperation of the English and French teachers. Again this year a Prize Story Contest was held; it caused the judges a struggle over the decision. A new plan has been put into effect for the training of next year's editors by using their aid in the preparation of the last two issues. Robert Church has been chosen editor-in-chief for next year.

Much credit for the success of our school paper must be given to our Editor-in-chief, John Tynan, and to the Literary Editors, Jeannette Eyre and Mary Rankin. Upon them rests the responsibility of our literary work in the Review, and they may well be proud of the result. We have received many words of commendation from other school papers and from people who are in a position to judge a good school magazine. We wish the best of luck to the Review Staff of 1934.

In 1929 we enrolled in C. H. L. S. and we have gone forward in spite of difficulties until we have reached our goal — graduation! The class of 1933 has been active in making class history from its very infancy.

We established a record in the first stage of high school life, or what is laughingly referred to as the "Freshman Class", by paying our dues conscientiously, and by doing homework religiously. Teachers liked us; we were new material with receptive minds. What timid souls we were! Marveling at the sophistication of our elders we secretly endeavored to imitate them, but in their presence we became abashed. Our class soon displayed its ability to the rest of the school by adding our names to the honor rolls. We couldn't suppress a proud-rooster crow, while our faces beamed with elation. A novelty was introduced in the guise of a seventh period. This attracted many, but how disappointing, as time went on, to see a few bored stragglers wearily surviving a seventh period. Did we dream of intellectual fame or athletic prowess? Yes, every student passes through that phase of life and some of our ideals were realized.

One day we dreamed, and when we awoke we were sophomores. Taking stock of our class we became garrulous, made friends, and were initiated into the athletic associations with great merry-making. The school atmosphere grew cheery, and gradually but surely home work was slighted, and some rules were broken. Do you remember how our class spirit was aroused? It resulted in our witnessing thrilling football games amidst hilarious excitement, and noisy clammerings.

Time went on and we were transported to the glorious whirlpool of the Junior year. We began to worry about our chances of graduation, so we diligently attacked studies with renewed vigor. This was the time when we really felt at home; freshmen were mere children, and seniors were our fellow associates. At this time of independence we felt the need of class officers and in order to satisfy the urge we went political and artistically decorated blackboards with the names of candidates. Our election was held officially and with great dignity. We chose for our leaders:

JOHN GATELY ..... President
WILLIAM GURRY ..... Vice-President
ROSEMARY BROOKS ..... Secretary
DANIEL JOHNSON ..... Treasurer

School life was again functioning normally when it was disturbed by plans for a Junior Prom. We held it in the Commander Hotel, where we enjoyed ourselves immensely. How different we looked in evening dress! This prom was one of the happiest and merriest events in our history. During our Junior year we also elected a ring committee which served us very efficiently.

As we turn over the pages of our history we come to the remarkable era of the reign of the Senior Class of 1933. The class in unison had agreed to make this our most brilliant, happy year, one that will always be remembered. Our first venture was the Senior Drama — "Smilin' Through", which we presented first in Brattle Hall and again in the new Edward Quinn Auditorium at Rindge. Dramatic talent was abundant, and we eagerly applauded the players who delighted us with their splendid characterizations.

Debating took on new life, and a series of debates, given in various schools by our conquering teams, showed everyone how much talent we have.

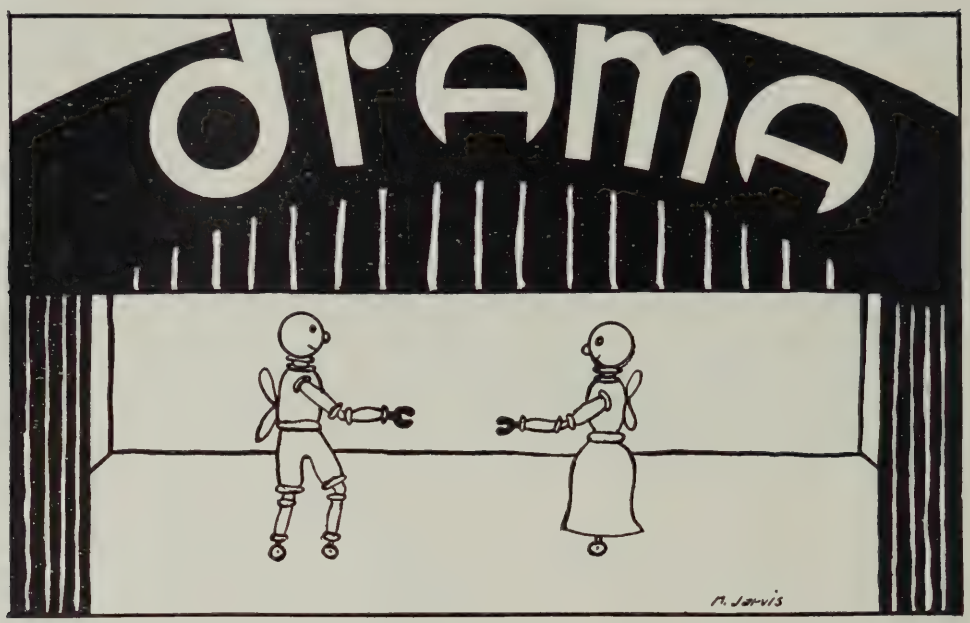
Because of the excellence of our Junior year officers, we unanimously re-elected them to serve us throughout the Senior year. This they have done admirably.

In April a shower of pictures flooded the school. We had trooped into Boston to the photographer, posed to advantage, and returned with a reflection of ourselves at our best. We exchanged pictures with much comment, insisting that they were the worst we had ever taken, in spite of the complimentary words of the receivers.

Incidentally, aren't you thrilled with the marshal music that pervades the morning air when the boys raise the flag on the Library grounds each day.

Now as graduation is at hand, we glance back on our four years with complacency. Our record is not entirely devoid of blemishes, but it compares favorably with those of preceding classes. We wonder at our development from mere children into learned men and women and we are heartily grateful to each and every one who has helped us. We leave behind us many friends, among the students, teachers, deans, and masters and we shall endeavor in the days to come to apply the teachings and lessons learned in dear old C. H. L. S.

CHRISTINE GALLAGHER.



The Senior Drama is probably one of the most important social events of the school year. Weeks and weeks are spent in preparation for it, not only by the cast, but also by Miss Hartigan and the other teachers in the Oral English department. But all is not work; we who pass the hall during rehearsals invariably hear sudden gales of loud laughter. When it is all over, and the curtain has gone down for the last time, no one is less happy for the experience.

"Smilin' Through", the well-known play by Allan Langdon Martin, was a difficult drama to present. Miss Hartigan had great confidence in the ability of her cast to follow intelligently her able direction, and the splendid performance both in Brattle Hall and in the Edward Quinn Auditorium at Rindge did not belie this confidence.

After the musical introduction had been finished and Miss Wait had laid down her baton, the lights went out, the curtain went up, and we saw a beautiful English country garden. We could almost hear the buzz of the bees, and smell the flowers. The actors came upon the stage and unfolded the story of the girl who loved, and the uncle who would not allow her to marry her lover, because fifty years earlier the lover's father had killed the uncle's fiancée on the very hour of their marriage. The uncle was full of bitterness and hate, but was finally persuaded by the family friend and physician that it is better to forgive and forget.

As for the acting, Josephine Reardon's Ellen, the maid, was, we think, the best characterization of the evening. Josephine dug deep into her character and stayed there. Lawrence Mullin's perfect illusion of old age, and his sterling acting during his big scenes made us forget completely where we were and whom we were watching. The minute Virginia Gately appeared on the stage she was unanimously welcomed. People craned their necks that they might see every gesture and hear every word she said. Virginia has a personality that is vital, vibrant. She picks us up and holds us until she has finished. We think that Virginia has a secret longing for the stage. Surely that personality plus her ability to understand and portray the emotions ought to send her far. Joseph Ricker did a splendid piece of work as the family friend and physician. His clear, strong voice could be heard in every corner of the theatre. Franklin Coleman invested in his Kenneth Wayne an admirable virility. John O'Leary received a great deal of individual applause. The audience hung on every word he said and laughed upon every appearance he made. Anne Moran, one of the prettiest girls in the cast, made a gentle and charming Mary. Rosemary Brooks proved a graceful partner for John Tynan in the dance. Lawrence Hopkins played the thankless part of the dummy so well that even the most observing in the audience did not realize that a dummy had been substituted. Alice Wheeler was lovely as the pathetic mother of the prologue. Joseph Boucher brightened the performance with his ready smile. The genial personality of Ann Roche permeated the atmosphere not only on stage, but off stage as well.

The play is over. Allow us to congratulate Miss Hartigan and the cast. May the cast of next year do as well.

The dreams we dreamed, the foolish things we said,
Knowing how hard it is to reconcile
Ambitions and ideals to life's demands.
And yet these powers
From which in eagerness we hope so much
May like the chestnut dropped from careless hands,
Take root and grow beyond our mortal clutch.
For knowledge gathered at a humble source
By thoughtful heart and penetrating mind
Intent on truth, can be the driving force
Behind the varied progress of mankind.

And these ideals
Inspired by the sharp inviting thrill
Of learning first acquired, may lead us on
To conquer all that life or death conceals.
Thus, in that not far distant while,
In retrospect upon
The thirst for truth that youthful dreams instill,
Perhaps there may be some who will not smile,
But quietly give thanks.

JEANNETTE EYRE.

When news of the Cambridge World's Fair, of this prosperous year of 1963, is broadcast to the four corners of the world, we the members of 1933, at once decide to gather anew from the four corners of the world.

We come from everywhere. As we sail through the clear skies in a two hundred passenger nine-motor airship which was designed by our friend John Stone, we await with eager anticipation the joy and happiness of good fellowship in which we are about to participate among the scenes of our old school-days.

Looking around we see that some of our fellow-passengers are well-known to us. There in the front seat we see Priscilla Abercrombie, a prominent business woman, gazing serenely out of the window; sitting next to her and knitting calmly is Elizabeth Geary, the noted choir-leader. Directly across from them sits Alan Darling reading a classic which he picked up on his travels around the world. We roam into the salon and there we see Bob Edison, Joe Coughlin, Jim McDermott, and Vin Panunzio, members of the Cambridge Chamber of Commerce, engaged in a round of bridge. Standing next to the bar with one foot on the rail, his right hand in his pocket, and his left hand holding a glass of a sparkling beverage is none other than Benny Fitzgerald. He is an outstanding figure with his light blue-gray suit, pink shirt, yellow tie, and white spats. He is talking with three charming ladies. There also we see Ann Altimas, Margaret Brackett, and Lucy Majewska who, together, own the smartest beauty shop in Paris. Others who are on board are Tom Mansfield and John O'Leary, two big game hunters just returning from the wilds of Africa; Tim Kirby, our ambassador to Ireland; Christina Gallagher, a famous designer of women's clothes; Max Rakov, a prosperous jewel merchant; Greta Wood, a well-known poetess; Virginia Adams, private secretary of the President of the United States; and Virginia Gately, a noted stage star returning from her successful tour through Europe. Our trip is made very comfortable by the stewardess, Agnes Russell. Soon our fair city comes into view and our pilot, Bob Lokeman, makes a perfect landing on the most modern airport in the world. The success of the airport is due to the efficient business managing of Morris Rabinovitz, and it boasts of the best pilots, among whom are Bill McKeever, Eddie Müller, Bill Horgan, Joe Fleming, and Frank Murphy.

Upon alighting from the airship we find ourselves greeted by John Carchia, the managing director, and his assistants Agy Culolias, Bob Toomey, Phil Stamatopoulos, Frank Skinner, and Renarto Compasano. With them we notice the Reception Committee made up of Mary Brogan, Margaret Conroy, Bill Manousos, and Sam Appelstein; behind them is the band. The members of the band are Bob Kelty, the leader and noted clarinet artist; Frank Desmond, trombone player; Bob Dore, trumpeter; Tom Broderick, saxophonist; Ed Morrell, bassoon player; and Al Warrens, drummer.

While we are being greeted by the committee, questions are thrown at us by a horde of reporters among whom we recognize Jim Clancy, Fred Ritzau, Arthur King, and Bob Martin. Having finished with the reporters, we are told to smile and say a few words by the news-reel camera-men, George Vartamian and Joe MacDonough, and their sound-effect men, John Murphy and Don McGilvary. We exchange greetings with the airport superintendents who are Eddie Turouski, Tony Puzyn, Charley Moore, John Riley, and Eddie Whelan, and then make our way to the busses. We notice there are inscriptions on the sides of the busses which read, "Barenberg's Better Busses", and that the driver is our friend Bill Veague.

We leave the airport in low, slender, silver-gray colored busses and our attention is at once attracted by the change that has come over our city. Gone are the small dwellings, factories and business houses, and in their stead rise tall, stately buildings reaching from one hundred to one hundred and fifty stories in height. The streets have also undergone a change. There are now three street levels: the first being for motor trucks, the second for the elevated railway and busses, and the third for automobiles and pedestrians. The engineering work for the building of these was directed by Fred Parsons. The bus approaches Hotel Franklin Roosevelt, named after the disperser of the depression back in 1933, and enters a garage in the side of the hotel. We are greeted by the suave manager, Joe Ricker, always alert and courteous and we are shown to our rooms. After changing into evening clothes and after having dinner, we go into the lounge. Looking around we see John Gately, the mayor of Cambridge, and the members of his council, Willard Doherty, Dick Fox, Harold Hopkins, Arthur Edgecomb, Guy DeBenedetto, and the city treasurer, Dan Johnson.

Sitting in the far corner we see Wilson Babcock, a prominent Cambridge business man; Rosemary Brooks, dean of the C. H. L. S. senior girls; John Tynan, owner of a nation-wide newspaper syndicate; Lawrence Mullen, a noted physician; and Esther Wexler, a famous motion picture star. Looking toward our right we find the debonair Joe Boucher, who has become football coach at C. H. L. S., his assistant Jim Feeley, and Gerry Munroe, the baseball coach. Talking with them are Paul Wallins, the well-known pharmacist; Maurice Callum, a prominent real estate man; and Al Weisman, a noted professor of zoology.

An hour later we leave the hotel and on our way to the Fair Grounds, which are located in what once were "the wide open spaces" of Belmont, we meet two famous cartoonists, Joe Thomas and Tony Forziati. Further up the street we see Marion Jarvis, a Girl Scout Officer, leading a troop of girls.

Entering the Fair Grounds, we see a modernistic Night Club owned by Bill Gurry, the maker of "Green Bow", an enticing beverage. We decide to enter, and as we do we are greeted by that charming hostess Edith Fay. As we look around the club we see Dot Grady, Theresa Dwyer, Lillian Gray, Marion Barton, and Claire Littlefield, who are teachers at C. H. L. S., and with them is Dot Falvey, who is the physical instructor there. After dancing to the tunes of the orchestra of the "old maestro" Max Rubin, who, by the way, is all dressed up in his best spats, we are entertained by Joe Dockery, master of ceremonies, Elva Petersen, who plays a few selections on the piano, and Doris Chaisson, who gives an exhibition of acrobatic dancing. We almost overlook the fact that the program of the club is broadcast over the air by Ray Ghizzoni.

Tired of dancing, we leave the club and walk up the brilliantly lighted street which has many attractions on both sides. Looking to our left we see Franklin Coleman demonstrating his patented, self-working vacuum cleaner. Next to his stand is a building in which Charley Davis shows us his printing presses, at which he is busily preparing his newspapers, for the people of Cambridge. Turning our eyes to the right we see Bernice Lord's cozy Tea Shoppe, erected beside Agnes Thibodeau's smart millinery mart. After refreshing ourselves at Bill Mavrides' Spa, we visit John Budryk's interesting chemistry laboratory. Here we stop and chat with Jeannette Eyre, Ann Moran, and Mary Rankin, the leaders of the "400" of Cambridge. Still we have time to visit Josephine Reardon in one of her smart shops for women's apparel, and from there we go to Pauline Blanchard's Red Cross Medical Laboratory where we are shown about by Ruby Chipman, who is head of the nursing staff.

Glancing at our watches we see that time has passed quickly, and we decide to go back to the hotel. As we wend our way through the crowd, we meet Paul Edmonds, warden at Sing Sing, and Barney Wantman, the Chief of Police of Cambridge.

We reach our headquarters in the hotel at Harvard Square, and as we pass the magazine stand through the lobby we see approaching Carolyn Wicker, the dean at Radcliffe, and Mildred McNally, a teacher of social etiquette at Wellesley.

We retire to our rooms and as we gaze out of the window at the star-lit sky, in the distance looms one dear old C. H. L. S. and we smile as we hum, "Hail, hail, the gang's all here".

PHI CLUB

The Phi Club, this year, celebrates its tenth anniversary. Like most Greek letter societies, its origin was spontaneous, and it has carried its characteristic, fresh vigor into all of its activities. It escaped the pitfall, common to most high school clubs, in that it did not become a society devoted to the select few; rather it embraced, in its scope, the entire student body, the majority of whose members belong to the Phi Club.

Such an organization, in capable hands, can do much good, and the Phi Club has fulfilled its intended purpose. Year after year, it has sponsored athletic contests, and from its ranks have come some of the finest athletes of C. H. L. S. It has provided for a scholarship which, although temporarily lapsed, due to economic conditions, has aided many deserving students, and will, in the future, continue to do so, we hope.

But, something more than the ability to co-operate, something more than the mere desire to have these things come to pass, is responsible for our present existence. We, the members of the Phi Club, realize this, and we are not at a loss, as to where to place the honor and gratitude which is our debt. We, therefore, gratefully take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to the faculty and to the master of the Annex. May they, therefore, meet with the greatest success and joy, in the years to come, in their pursuit of the same endeavors which we have so much reason to remember in our Phi Club life.

The officers for this year are: President, Frank Galgay; Vice-President, J. B. Toomey; Treasurer, Edward J. Carson; Secretary, Dominic Argenzio; Sergeant-at-Arms, Joseph Hindle. RICHARD E. MCLAUGHLIN.

K. B.

In spite of the depression the K. B. Club has managed to keep its head above board and with a little to spare! Our advisers, Miss McElroy and Miss Murray guided us splendidly through the morasses of a money-less state.

At Dorothy Haverty's house we were very dignified at a formal initiation of our new members.

Our dance was a huge success socially and financially. The proceeds from it, from our bridge, and from the sale of candy at the Senior Drama have enabled us to send several children away to healthful surroundings for the summer. Through the generosity of the members themselves, we were able to make a few families a lot happier on Thanksgiving and Christmas Days.

Following this, we held our second initiation in a form of a progressive dinner — a new and entertaining way.

We are anticipating a week-end. There we shall all be together, perhaps, for the last time. In such a way do the affairs of the K. B. end gaily, happily, and optimistically. The officers who directed the club so well this year were: President, Anne Moran; Treasurer, Helen Dugan; Secretary, Virginia Gately.

DEBATING TEAM

Second Row: G. Emerson, M. Callum, Miss Margaret Breau, Coach; F. Shaine, B. Seron.

First Row: M. Rabinovitz, W. Babcock, P. Wallins, H. Johnson.

DEBATING

Cambridge Latin has just completed one of the most successful debating seasons in years. Debating has taken a high place in the extra-curricular activities of our school life, due to the intelligent fostering of this interesting form of mental effort on the part of school authorities, and the excellent record made by our debating teams.

This year saw the establishment of debating classes under the direction of Miss Breau. These classes formed the nucleus of the Durrell Debating Society from which the varsity teams were selected. A difficult schedule of four debates was arranged, and three of these contests were won. The varsity team consisting of Wilson Babcock, Raymond McCaffrey, and George Emerson was successful in defeating Roxbury Memorial, Lynn Classical, and Brookline High. Raymond McCaffrey, incidentally, distinguished himself as one of the best rebuttalists this, or any other high school, has ever had.

Another team, consisting of Paul Wallins, Charles Littlefield, and Morris Rabinovitz met Roxbury Memorial in a return engagement, and, while giving an exceedingly good account of themselves, lost by a very close decision.

The Durrell Debate took place on Friday, May 12. An interesting and informative question, the recognition of Soviet Russia was the subject. The affirmative was upheld by Philip Barron, Fred Shaine and Paul Wallins; the negative by Berj Seron, Harry Johnson, and Maurice Callum. The affirmative side was victorious.

It was gratifying to see the interest manifested by the student body in debating. Many thanks are due to Miss Breau for her wise guidance, and to Miss Hartigan, who devoted much valuable time to the instruction of the teams. The Durrell Debating Society is also grateful for the interest and encouragement shown by Mr. Cleveland, who had no small part in the successes of the year.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

Second Row: McKeever, Allt, Montgomery, Saulnier, Murphy, Crawley, Healy, Zelch, Barry, Lynch.

FOOTBALL

The Cambridge Latin eleven of this year came out of its former slump. Although the team did not compete very successfully in the league games, it rendered hard battles to its opponents. The team led by Captain Johnson regained some of Cambridge Latin's old form. The line was very strong because of its being fortified with veteran material. In an attempt to strengthen the backfield, Kyricos was converted into a fullback. He was lost to the team however, by injuries. This was a great blow to Latin's hopes. The dynamic Jack Carchia was the most consistent ground gainer while Joe Boucher pulled Latin out of many tight spots with his punting. The classic game on Columbus Day with our traditional rival Rindge was the best game of the year. Latin played its smoothest game and stopped the Rindge offense. Latin threatened many times but just couldn't make it.

Captain Johnson and Joe Boucher were selected for positions on the All-Suburban team. Maguire, an outstanding asset at left end, was elected to lead the team next year. The team did its best for our beloved leader, Leander MacDonald, who has probably coached his last football team for C. H. L. S.

The following were awarded letters: Capt. Johnson, Capt.-Elect Maguire, Boucher, Crawley, J. Carchia, A. Carchia, Dunleavy, Feeley, Galluccio, Hindle, Katasha, Kyricos, Montgomery, Miliekis, McKeever, Murphy, Petrusionis, Healy, Barry, Allt, Jozwicki, Nudorf, Ronzio, Fitzgerald, Lynch, Saulnier, Zelch, and Manager Cusack.

HOCKEY TEAM

Third Row: Johnson, Manager; Anderson, Mr. Garrett Foley, Faculty Manager; Vinnecombe, Mr. John Culhane, Coach; Tarausky, Assistant Manager.
Second Row: Allt, Gurry, Hindle, Boucher, O'Leary, Spartachino.
First Row: Crawley, Rooney, Desrosiers, Captain; Puzyn, Gomes.

HOCKEY

The hockey candidates, mostly veterans, led by Capt. Desrosiers reported under a new coach, Mr. Culhane. The team was composed of veterans, and the defense was strengthened by the services of Johnny Spartachino, ex-Rindge star. Through hard practice, Cambridge Latin showed the best passing attack seen at the Boston Garden this winter. They did not win the league championship, yet their games were always interesting. Red Desrosiers and Johnny Spartachino were picked on the Interscholastic League Team. Although Cambridge will miss Babe Allt, stellar left wing, they will have not only a veteran team next year, but the nucleus of a championship team. Eddie Rooney, our center, was elected to lead the sextet next year.

BASKETBALL TEAM

Second Row: Johnson, McKeever, Montgomery, Coady, Pitchford, Romanas, Paul Mahoney, Lynch, Sullivan.
First Row: Frisoli, Maguire, Kishkis, West, Klevas, Captain; Young, James Mahoney, Rogert, Ally.

BASKETBALL

Coach Kozlowski found that he had a wealth of veteran material on hand, as well as some excellent new talent with which to build a good team this year. Under the leadership of Capt. Klevas, an outstanding guard, Cambridge had a fairly successful season. The team this year missed entering the Tech Tournament. Mahoney and Rogert, who will graduate this June, were a pair of stalwarts on our quintet. Their shoes will be filled by West, who was elected captain for next year's five, and Young, two stars of the past season.

The following were awarded letters: Captain Klevas, Captain-elect West, Kishkis, Young, Maguire, Rogert, Sullivan, McKeever, Mahoney, Frisoli, Ally, Plausky, Mgr. Cusack, and Asst. Mgr. Coffey.

BASEBALL SQUAD

Second Row: Mr. Garrett Foley, Faculty Manager; McMahon, Gallucio, Davy, Toomey, Anderson, Mr. Leander MacDonald, Coach.
First Row: Spartachino, Riley, Kornatowski, Crawley, Captain; Mahoney, Gurry, Puzyn.

BASEBALL

Seventy-five baseball aspirants answered the call for baseball. The candidates were led by Capt. Crawley, who was selected as All-Suburban shortstop last year. The team has plenty of batting strength from both new comers and veterans. Rogert, Mahoney, and Anderson are the hurlers who will take up where Kelley left off. The vacancy at third base has been filled better than was expected by acquiring the services of Cottier, who is a brilliant fielder, with one of the best throwing arms seen at Cambridge for several years. He is also one of the best batters on the team. First base has been filled very capably by Anderson who has been shifted from pitcher to first base. His work to date is satisfactory. "Tony" Gallucio who was the catcher of last year's team has been converted to an outfielder. The team is very fortunate in having "Johnny" Spartachino as their catcher, because he is one of the best in the Suburban League. MacMahan, a seasoned veteran, will resume his duties at second base.

To date the team on a whole is very strong. This is proven by the close game with Newton to whom we lost by the score of 9 - 8. The team, despite this loss at the hands of Newton, redeemed themselves by winning from Brookline and Lawrence Academy. This year's aggregation hopes to retain the league championship.

Coach MacDonald is pleased with his prospects and expects a fast, scrappy outfit.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Second Row: Sally Donovan, Madelyn Sullivan, Miss Brown, Leila Larson, Lindsay Britt.

The Girls' Athletic Association is an organization which primarily pledged itself to the benefit and entertainment of those girls of C. H. L. S. who are interested in athletics. This year, as in the past, the organization has been enabled to carry out every one of its plans with success. It is apparent that any successful accomplishment of the G. A. A. is partly due to the officers of the previous year, and it is noticeable that the endeavors of the officers of 1932 are largely responsible for the great increase of membership in the association this year. Nothing could be gained, however, without the indispensable advice and assistance given the organization by its faculty adviser, Miss Brown.

The first event of the year was the presentation of medals to the winners of the doubles tennis tournament, Emily and Doris Long. Immediately afterward came the initiation of the freshmen. It is pleasant to note that these members of the class of 1936 took their initiation in a very sportsmanlike manner.

The furors of the elements together with all the disturbances attending a presidential election did not detract one bit from the success of the Barn Dance, which was held as a welcoming party to the freshmen. The gymnasium, with the help of decorative corn-stalks and hay, was made to resemble a barn as much as possible; a stabled, but nevertheless frisky "Blind Maud" added much to the appropriateness of the occasion.

On November 23, the officers delivered Thanksgiving baskets to needy families of Cambridge. We wish to extend their appreciation to all those members who made this charitable endeavor possible by contributing foodstuffs.

SENIOR GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM

Second Row: Jessie Maver, Eileen Fletcher, Miss Brown, Marjorie Odell.
First Row: Mildred McNally, Jeannette Eyre, Captain; Martha Russell.

The Girl Dance, held December 9, was very successful. It was noticeable that the greatest aggregation of past officers, with perhaps one function excepted, gathered at this festival.

On December 22, a Christmas party was held in the assembly hall. Santa Claus, in person, appeared and presented a gift to each member. Afterward, a Christmas play was given.

Following the noble precedent established by all our functions, the Boy Dance afforded us much pleasure. We remark, proudly, that it was held on Friday, the thirteenth of January!

At the time of writing, the baseball season had just arrived. Practice sessions have met, and games have been arranged with Arlington, Melrose, and Wellesley.

Swimming practice has been held every Saturday morning under the direction of Miss Staples. An inter-class meet and a meet with Somerville are on schedule at present.

The last celebration of the year, the picnic, will be held at Kendall Green. Needless to say, every member looks forward in eager anticipation of this event.

MARJORIE ODELL.

HONOR VARSITY TEAM

This year we played no outside Varsity games. Following the precedent of most of the Suburban high schools, we played only class games. At the end of the season an Honor Varsity was chosen which played the alumnae, losing to them by a score of 32 - 31. The second team won by a score of 31 - 30. The first varsity was comprised of six seniors, McNally, Odell, Maver, Eyre, Fletcher, and Russell, and three sophomores, Culolias, Saideh, and Donnelly. Marjorie Odell was the capable captain.

GIRLS' VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

Second Row: Martha Russell, Eileen Fletcher, Jeannette Eyre, Olga Culolias, Miss Brown.

First Row: Catherine Norton, Mildred McNally, Marjorie Odell, Captain; Jessie Maver, Evelyn Saideh.

SENIOR BASKETBALL

This year's Senior Basketball Team began its season handicapped by the loss of several reliable players of the year before. Furthermore, the team had always been somewhat gracefully indolent, winning by a high score or not at all. As the season went on, however, reconstruction began, positions were shifted, new players appeared, and there evolved a surprisingly coherent, powerful little team. Especially noteworthy is the morale of the team, to which we owe much of our outstanding success. Our remarkable record is above all due to the untiring thought, wisdom, and sympathy of our coach, Miss Brown.

The Senior Team finally achieved the School Championship by defeating the Juniors and the almost indomitable Freshmen. The scores follow:

Juniors	12	Seniors	27
Juniors	11	Seniors	27
Freshmen	21	Seniors	25
Freshmen	15	Seniors	23

The Seniors made an excellent record in their outside games; we believe better than any other Senior team for some time. We won five out of seven games played, losing only to the Arlington Varsity and to Wellesley. The scores were:

C. H. L. S. Seniors	12	Arlington Varsity	45
C. H. L. S. Seniors	30	Belmont Seniors	28
C. H. L. S. Seniors	17	Wellesley Seniors	35
C. H. L. S. Seniors	35	Waltham Seniors	22
C. H. L. S. Seniors	24	Newton Seniors	17
C. H. L. S. Seniors	35	Medford Seniors	17
C. H. L. S. Seniors	30	Arlington Seniors	8

Individually, the team had as good material as the coördinated product. Mildred McNally and Marjorie Odell, forwards, showed a skill and finish which scored many points. Eileen Fletcher and Martha Russell, the guards, did yeoman service in every game. The centers, Jessie Maver and Jeannette Eyre, did a good piece of work toward keeping the ball at the Cambridge end. Especially worthy of praise are the substitutes, Edith Kredentzer and Evelyn Morse, without whose services the team would have lost much of its verve and force.

The aforementioned indomitable Freshmen lived up to their reputation by defeating the Seniors in a topsy turvy game held at the end of the season.

Thus the class of 1933 vanishes in person, but not in spirit, from basketball at Cambridge Latin.

We, the class of 1933, being as usual of sound mind and of beneficent disposition do hereby publicly probate our last Will and Testament.

1. Not unselfishly we leave to Mr. Cleveland two tents, to be used for P. G. home rooms.

2. We appropriate money for an overhead passway between the Latin building and the Annex on the third floor.

3. We leave to the Junior Class great amounts of learning on the text books; helpful, however, only to those who are able to read between the lines.

4. We leave and bequeath a penthouse and roof garden to the class of 1934 to be used for resting purposes after exams and vacations.

5. We leave a fleet of Austins to the people who are always late to class.

6. We leave our valuable catalogue of faculty signatures, records, and examples on proper ways to "cut" class and pass exams.

7. We leave and bequeath to the faculty the great sorrow which will be theirs when they miss our brilliant faces and to them we leave also the right to make the succeeding classes understand how stupid and ignorant they are.

8. We leave a deficit of pencils and blocks but a surplus of oil, midnight and otherwise.

9. We leave a supply of flowers and candy for candidates trying to procure dismissal cards from the nurse.

We leave and bequeath also:

1 — A standing order for one carnation to be left to a Junior deserving of Jimmy Mahan's place.

2 — To the lunchroom one new chicken.

3 — Our ability for bizarre assemblies.

4 — Poker chips and cards for the Classical Library.

5 — One new march to our most estimable orchestra.

6 — One million dollars to our Athletic Association.

7 — Our amazing scholastic, athletic, and social abilities.

8 — To the Juniors one box of Murads each, just for a start.

9 — To the Sophomores sophistication and a little common sense.

10 — To the Freshmen, long trousers and compacts.

11 — And lastly we leave HOPE — heaven knows you'll need it.

Signatures of the foregoing document are to be forged and affixed in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-three.

JOHN P. GATELY, President
WILLIAM GURRY, Vice-President
ROSEMARY BROOKS, Secretary
DANIEL JOHNSON, Treasurer

We, being of a Puritanical spirit, omit all swearing on this thirteenth day of June nineteen hundred and thirty-three.

Epilogue

We feel regret as we draw to a conclusion this Year Book, in which we have recorded something, we hope, of our histories, our personalities, and our aspirations. While we are leaving behind us much that we have known and enjoyed, we carry with us friendships made lasting by pleasures, adventures and hardships which we have shared. Life stretches on beyond us; soon we shall mingle in its crowds. Before we take up the challenge, let us assemble once again to wish to each and every one a happy landing.

P. Pomeroy.
